AWARDING INSTITUTION

University of Suffolk (UK)

Graduate nurses are central to the design and delivery of equitable, ethical health systems that focus on public health, prevention of illness, care of physical and mental health for all ages in all healthcare and community settings. Nurses are at the forefront of new models of working including leading services. Investing in nurse education so that graduate nurses can tailor their care to people-centred models is imperative for the individuals and the ongoing development of the profession.

This degree consisting of four 20 credit modules and a 40 credit dissertation for qualified, experienced nurses to 'top up' their diploma to a degree in Mental Health Nursing supports this vision.

Learning Outcomes

1. Manage self and others in practice in accordance with the NMC standards and ethical, legal frameworks that ensures the primacy of service user interest, respecting wellbeing and human rights.
2. Lead the delivery of innovative, evidence based practice within planned progressive and individualised care plans, which generates new understanding of the theoretical foundations of nursing care in a mental healthcare setting.
